February 26-27th, 2004

“Think Globally, Act Locally”

Qualifies for 8.5 CFE contact hours in category 1 towards a Society of American Foresters Continuing Forestry Education!

To: MOTAG-Registrants

Everyone that receives this agenda has probably attended a MOTAG session in the past years. So in reading this you already know the value that these meetings bring not only to your professional career, but also to your company's bottom line.

Every mill personnel that attends a MOTAG session always goes home with new ideas and new contacts that will eventually save time and money for their mill.

It is only through these face to face meetings, engaging our industry in dialogue and the sharing of best practices that we can help take our industry forward in these globally competitive times.

I recently attended a TAPPI conference where the key note speaker was Richard B Phillips, Senior Vice President of Technology for International Paper, his presentation was on “Where will paper be made in the future?” He discussed the “Top 10 Imperatives for the Paper Industry in the United States” I have attached a copy for your reading pleasure.

Three of the 10 items he stated that “requires successful execution” are achievable just by attending a MOTAG session.

Grow the top line through product technology
Understand the need to be cost competitive.
Invest not only in machines, bricks, and mortar, but also in people.

Through keeping on top of industry developments, sharing best practices and networking with your peers, you can do your part to help keep your department in your mill cost effective in today's tough environment. Think globally, but act locally!

Sam Caldwell and Jack Bethune have spent many hours putting together a information packed two days of meetings, starting with our key note speaker Randy Stevenson Chairman of the FRMSC, he will be speaking on where do we go for the future and what can you do to help. Bill Fuller retired Weyerhaeuser, who now has his own consulting company will be speaking on what it takes to be a leader, and how you can lead your company or department to success. We look forward to seeing you in Atlanta on the 26th and 27th to support your peers that have taken the time to put together presentations, that share their success stories and invite you to do the same.

Many Thanks – Joanne Kaila – Vice Chair FRMSC & Secretary MOTAG South
